My task for next meeting is to start a Google doc for poll questions

From Connie: go over the list that Kendra downloaded off the ACVBM site, and we should go down the list and decide for ourselves if specific groups meet the requirements of the outline. We have all taken classes or taught for the various groups and between us, we have the ability to decide which groups teach to the standard of the group and which need some help. I think we can also see which subjects are not available at all and need to have course work made available. This could be of our own doing or through working with one of the groups to develop the course material for us. We could bang that list out in 1-1.5 hours and have a good idea of what to say to each group by the end of our meeting. I think this will streamline the process and leave out extra parts that aren't necessary. It's not easy for any one of us to do this alone, as none of us have taken all the courses, though most of us have taken one or multiple courses. I don't think we can write the letters until we get this done, and together this is an easy task if we stay focused and forward.
